From Saturday October 18, to Tuesday October 21, 1746.

Kenſington, October 21.

THE following Addreſs of the Mayor, Freeholders, and Freemen of the antient Burrough of St. Mawes, has been preſented to his Majeſty by Robert Nugent, Eſq; one of their Repreſentatives in Parliament, being introduced by the Right Hon. the Earl Waldegrave, one of the Lords of his Majeſty's Bed-Chamber in Waiting: Which Addreſs his Majeſty was pleaſed to receive very graciouſly.

To the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty,

The humble Addreſs of the Mayor, Freeholders, and Freemen of the antient Burrough of St. Mawes.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majeſty's moſt loyal Subjects, the Mayor, Freeholders, and Freemen of your antient Burrough of St. Mawes, moſt humbly beg Leave, with Hearts full of Joy, to congratulate your Majeſty upon the Succeſs of your Majeſty's Arms, under the auſpicious Conduct of his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland, in ſuppreſſing the late unprovoked and moſt unnatural Rebellion.

As Trade, Property, Religion, and Liberty, are now reſcued from the Attempts of domeſtick Enemies, by wiſe and vigorous Meaſures; that theſe invaluable Bleſſings be ſecured from our Foreign Enemies, by like Meaſures to us, and to our lateſt Poſterity, under your Majeſty and your Royal Line, is and ſhall be our fervent Prayer.

Stockholm, October 7, O. S. On Saturday laſt General Lubras, the Ruſſian Miniſter, took his Audience of Leave. Laſt Night died here, in a very advanced Age, Senator Count Lagersberg.

From the Camp at Menton, Oct. 14, N. S. Since the 6th Inſtant, N. S. we have had nothing very material here in Point of Military Occurrences: The Evacuation of the Town of Ventimiglia by the Enemy was like to prove of little Service to us, as our marching forwards ſeemed to be equally obſtructed by their leaving 300 Men in the Caſtle, under the Command of a brave and reſolute Swiſs Officer, who would not hear of any Propoſitions for the Surrendring of it. In this Dilemma the King of Sardinia, and the Generals under him, turned their Thoughts to the finding out ſome other Road by the Mountains, and rendring it practicable by Pioneers; and tho' the Difficulties ſeemed almoſt inſuperable, it was at laſt compaſſed, and the Army ſet forwards on Monday the 10th Inſtant to this Place in two Marches; but tho' we avoided the Cannon of the Caſtle, we had much to ſuffer from the Badneſs of the Road, inſomuch that the King of Sardinia and the Duke of Savoy themſelves were forced to go moſt of the Way on Foot, and ſeveral of our Horſes and Mules fell down the Precipices. Upon the Army's coming here, we were informed the Enemy was poſſeſſed of all the eſſential Poſts that lay between this Place and Nice, and the Means of forcing them out of the ſame, and opening the Way to the Var were immediately taken into Conſideration: Beſides the two Bodies under Marquis Balbian, and Brigadier Martini (the laſt of which was reinforced with ſeveral Companies of Grenadiers, choſen Militia and Independent Companies) which were diſpoſed of in the Mountains on the Flank of the Enemy, General Gorani was ordered to march with ten Battalions more, to attack them if poſſible, on another Side: We heard Yeſterday Evening that he had already driven them out of one eſſential Poſt and ſecured it, as alſo that he was preparing to attack them again this Morning.

By an Officer who arrived Yeſterday from the Marquis Botta, we underſtand, that General Brown had begun his March with a large Detachment from the Auſtrian Army near Genoa, to join us. We have this Morning had an Account, that there were Yeſterday Afternoon, and till late in the Night, ſeveral ſharp Engagements on the Mountains that command the Poſt of La Turbie, between the Body of our Troops under General Gorani and the French and Spaniſh Troops there: Some Men have been loſt on both Sides, tho' more on the Enemy's than our's, but General Gorani himſelf has been killed on the Spot. However our People ſucceeded at laſt in forcing and poſſeſſing themſelves of all the Poſts that command La Turbie, except one little Hillock, which Count D'Antremont, a Brigadier in the King of Sardinia's Troops, on whom the Command of that Body is now devolved, propoſed to attack this Morning if the Enemy did not abandon it in the Night, which their Deſerters, who are juſt now come in, aſſure us, that they have done. If this laſt Circumſtance is confirmed and proves true, our March to Nice can now meet but with very little Oppoſition, and we think will be immediately undertaken.

P. S. Two Officers diſpatched by Count D'Antremont have juſt now brought the King of of Sardinia an Account, that the Enemy had abandoned La Turbie in the Night.

Munich, Oct. 20, N. S. Letters of the 7th Inſtant from the King of Sardinia's Head Quarters at Bordighera inform us, that his Sardinian Majeſty, after having driven the French and Spaniards from their Poſts upon the Hills, with very little Loſs on his Part, had given Orders for making a new Road over a Mountain which leads to the Caſtle of Ventimiglia, in order to attack it, which, it is thought, would give the Enemy Time to retire: And they write from Nice under the ſame Date, that it was thought that half the Spaniſh Cavalry would march to Catalonia, and the reſt remain in Savoy.

Copenhagen, Oct. 22. We had a violent Storm here on the 13th Inſtant, which muſt have occaſioned great Loſſes at Sea. A Melancholy Account is already received of ſome Part of the Britiſh Merchant Fleet, which ſail'd lately from Elſenore. Several of thoſe Traders run upon the Riff of Anholt, where one ſtuck faſt, two beat over, and are ſince ſunk, but the Men ſaved; two others got into a ſmall Swediſh Harbour in a very bad Condition, the reſt threw Part of their Cargoes over board, and by that means were preſerved, but it is much feared that ſome more have periſhed; ſince the Convoy was ſeen upon the Coaſt of Norway, with only about ninety Sail, tho' they were upwards of one Hundred when they left Elſenore. Lieutenant Generals Huitfield, Walter, Brockenhuus and Lerche, are promoted to the Rank of Generals, the two former of the Infantry, and the latter of the Cavalry. The French Cutter which put in at Bergen, with a new Company of ſuſpected Perſons, ſail'd away with them for France on the 8th of Auguſt.

Camp of Ambie, Oct. 26. The Britiſh and Heſſian Troops march this Morning towards Venlo, the Hanoverians are to follow next Saturday, and ſuch of the Auſtrians as are to be in Luxemburg marched Yeſterday.

Amſterdam, Oct. 28, N. S. There are ſeveral Letters here that ſay, that the Duke d'Anville's Squadron has attacked Louisbourg, and has been repulſed with great Loſs, both by Sea and Land. By our beſt Advices from Bruſſels, Marſhal Saxe arrived there on Monday laſt from the Army; it was thought he would remain there eight or ten Days, and then ſet out for Paris. The Duke de Bonteville was appointed Governor of Bruſſels, and Count Lowendall of Namur, and the Province. The French were beginning to demoliſh the Fortifications of Mons. By Letters from Paris of the 24th Inſtant, the Engliſh Troops under General St. Clair, had intrenched themſelves very ſtrongly upon the Peninſula of Quiberon. They had erected three Batteries, and the Fleet had a good Bay to ride in, and was ſecured from all Winds. They had alſo made a Cut through the Iſthmus, which joins the Point of Quiberon to the Continent. Some Letters mention, that after having landed the Troops, the Engliſh Squadron was ſailed in order to lay ſiege to Belleiſle. It was added, that the Engliſh had not committed any Outrages, but that the Alarm amongſt the Merchants was renewed, and that the Duke de Penthievres was upon the Point of ſetting out for Brittany; the Marſhal la Farre was already gone thither, together with Meſſ. Rotelin, de St. Prix, Cocclegan, and de Contades, and that the Duke de Rohan was getting together 1000 Gentlemen of the Province. By Advices from Breſt of the 18th Inſtant, two French Men of War, which ſailed with Duke d'Anville's Squadron, were arrived there, with an Account, that the ſaid Squadron had met with a violent Storm within 50 Leagues of Nova Scotia, by which the whole had greatly ſuffered, and that ſome of their largeſt Ships had been ſeparated from the Fleet in a very bad Condition. We have Letters from Vannes of the 20th, which ſay, that four Days after the Engliſh Troops had reimbarked, their Fleet appeared off the Caſtle of Quiberon, and ſummoned the Governor to ſurrender, threatning, in Caſe of Refuſal, to uſe the Garriſon with the utmoſt Rigour, and that the Governor had thereupon ſurrendred to them; that the Town of Vannes was in the utmoſt Conſternation, the Guards of the Coaſt having retired with Precipitation upon the landing of the Engliſh Troops; that by their Poſition all Communication with Belleiſle was cut off; and that ſeveral Britiſh Men of War were cruizing off that Iſland, in order to prevent any Supplies being ſent from the Coaſt thither; that an Order was arrived from Court, ſtrictly prohibiting any Ship of any Nation whatever from going out of any of the Ports in Brittany. The French Eaſt India Stock, which upon the Reimbarking of the Engliſh Troops roſe to 1420, was fallen again to 1180.

Hague, Oct. 28, N. S. Letters of the 12th Inſtant from Genoa aſſure, the Auſtrians under Count Brown being in Motion to overtake the King of Sardinia at Ventimiglia, and after their Junction, it is thought, that that Prince will leave to the Count the Command of the whole Combined Army, and return himſelf to Turin. In the mean Time the French and Spaniards are ſaid to have all repaſs'd the Var. The Penſionary returned hither from Breda laſt Night, as did the Earl of Sandwich to Day; and it is talked that M. de Puiſieux may likewiſe ſoon make a Tour over to this Place, where Count Harrach is daily expected. Our Letters from Paris of the 23d bring nothing new from the Side of Brittany with Regard to the ſecond Deſcent of the Engliſh, but they ſpeak as if the French Court had received ſome diſagreeable News of the Operations of its own Squadron under the Duke of Anville; and there are ſome private Letters here, which repreſent it to have actually met with a conſiderable Check in America, tho' they do not agree in the Circumſtances.

Dublin, October 11.

This Day being the Anniverſary of his Majeſty's Coronation, the great Guns were fired at the Phœnix Park, and anſwered by Vollies from the Regiments in Garriſon, which were drawn out upon Oxmantown Green. At Noon their Excellencies the Lords Juſtices met at the Caſtle, where a Squadron of Horſe attended, and received the Compliments of the Nobility and other

Per-

Persons of Distinction upon this Occasion. At Night there were Bonfires, Illuminations, and all other Demonstrations of Joy.
